

I am Madeleine Wallin and I am a mother of five children, between 15-29 years old, four boys and one girl.

I have been a stay-at-home-mother for altogether 17 years.

I live in the countryside in Sweden and work part-time in a business that my husband and I founded in 2006. We construct, produce and manufacture small forestry-machines called Malwa.

I am the General Secretary of FEFAF European Federation of Parents and Carers at Home, an umbrella organization with 19 member organizations in Europe. We work with valuing the unpaid care giving work both in the EU and at the UN and nationally in our countries.

I am the International Coordinator of the Swedish organization Haro and work voluntarily in both these organizations.

I am a traveller and really love to meet people. I am a storyteller and a motherhood-activist and the best education I have got in life is from being a mother.
